Grey Wolf Consulting announces the installation of its new 100+ yd firearms training range.

By Brian S. Williams – President / Chief Instructor, Grey Wolf Consulting, LLC

31 August, 2018

East Hampton, CT. – Grey Wolf Consulting announced today that it completed the installation its 100+ yd firearms training range on its newly acquired property.

Designed to allow for the training of individuals with long-arms, this new range features a width of approximately 40' and an 8' tall berm / backstop comprised of a combination of soil and stone dust which will provide increased deceleration of projectiles upon impact in addition to reducing natural erosion.

Although designed to be used primarily for the training of individuals with long-arms, the target system which is incorporated can easily be used for the training of individuals with handguns and shotguns or the running of specialized tactical / combat courses of fire.

Grey Wolf Consulting expects to begin the installation of another range specifically designed for the training of individuals with handguns within the coming months.
